Setup fees are one-time and cover the design work, one printed proof, and the finished file. Once it exists, reprints only pay the per-unit price.

> Why setup is priced separately from the unit. Adding your name costs a few minutes of drawing. Preparing a logo or a photo costs an hour or two of cleanup, depth testing, and a proof print. Charging both in one number means either over-charging single orders or losing money on multi-unit runs.

3 WHERE THE $20 ALREADY GOES

Estimates at typical hobby-printer rates — check them against your own slicer time and failure rate. The stock stand sells at $20 because there is no file prep, no proof, and no failed print to absorb — the design is already proven.
